

there until around 11 o'clock.

Q You are speaking now of the night of the 14th, not the morning of the 15th? A. I am speaking of Thursday the 14, 1922.

Q Do you recall that on that night you exchanged any words, greetings, or the like, with Mr. Stevens? A. Well, to put me on my oath, I want to be very sure, but I think I am safe to say I spoke to him. See, there was a fish caught; you see that Art Applegate--they pulled him up over there--he caught that blue fish.

Q Do you remember whether you had any conversation with Mr. Stevens about that particular blue fish which Art Applegate caught? A. Well, on my oath, I would not like to say. I rather think I had but I would not like--I can't. My memory won't serve me right now.

Q How long did these relatives of yours from Columbia stay?

A They left here the following morning around 10 o'clock, I think, but before you ever use--when you go before court I would rather you would check up on his alibi, see the copy, because he states a time and I might vary on the time. It is well to have it exact to cut tally, you understand. He said I had the time down. Riel said, my cousin said I had the time down fine. They came in the morning about ten o'clock, I should say.
